

Collaborating with Families Affected by Concurrent Disorders

Online Course for Health Care Providers

COURSE DATE:
May 3 – June 14, 2021

REGISTRATION FEE:
$425

For more information, please contact Robyn Steidman at robyn.steidman@camh.ca

Course overview

Families are an immense resource in the care, treatment and recovery of individuals with co-occurring mental health and addiction problems. However, they often have limited access to the help, information and resources they need to be supportive to the ones they love.

Through interactive activities, videos and discussion forums, this six-week facilitator led online course for health care providers explores the needs of families affected by concurrent disorders, as well as strategies that health care providers can use to empower families and ensure that their experiences with the health care system are positive

Learning objectives

- Describe the benefits of having families involved in the care of clients affected by concurrent disorders.
- Explain the impact of mental health and addiction problems on families.
- Outline the challenges that health care providers encounter while working with families.
- Describe the challenges and barriers that families face with the mental health care and addiction system.
- Explain physical, emotional, social and spiritual self-care strategies that families can use to reduce their stress.
- Explain how health care providers can provide support

To register for the course, please see the following link:

<https://www.camh.ca/en/education/continuing-education-programs-and-courses/continuing-education-directory/collaborating-with-families-affected-by-concurrent-disorders-online-course>